Rugba Enterprising Frontend

Programmer

As a curious and analytical Science Laboratory Technology graduate, I never imagined I would trade my microscope for code. However, during my undergraduate research project, I discovered the power of programming while automating data analysis tasks. This sparked a passion for coding, and I began teaching myself HTML, CSS, and JavaScript.

Through self-study, online courses and academy, and personal projects, I honed my skills in responsive web design, frontend development, and UI/UX principles. My strong foundation in scientific research and analysis has enabled me to approach programming with a logical and methodical mindset.

Now, as a detail-oriented and innovative frontend programmer, I bring a unique blend of scientific rigor and creativity to deliver high-quality, user-centered web applications.

Core Skills

- HTML5: Structure, semantics, and syntax
- CSS3: Selectors, properties, values, and preprocessors (e.g., Sass, Less)
- Responsive Web Design (RWD): Media queries, flexible grids, and images
- JavaScript: Basics, DOM manipulation, and event handling
- Cross-Browser Compatibility: Testing and debugging for various browsers and devices
